Trochu Band To Lead Parade When Jamboree Gets Underway

Great things are planned for young and old when Didsbury Lions open their annual Jamboree day with a grand parade at 12 noon next Wednesday, August 10. The 26-piece Trochu band will lead the parade and provide music at the grounds during the day.

Following is the program for the day:

Parade, 12 noon: Cash prizes will be awarded for best decorated float, best decorated car, best decorated bicycle (boy or girl), best dressed rider and horse, best clown and best turned out old-timer depicting the early years.

Baseball: Four teams from the Western League, including Westerdale, Hartman, Rosebud and Didsbury will start off at 1 p.m. to compete for the $100 prize money.

Children's Races: Races as usual will be run off for all ages with novelty events thrown in to create a bit of fun.

Flower and Vegetable Exhibit: As usual the master of ceremonies for this event is C. E. Reiber and a list of classes follows:

Half dozen carrots, half dozen beets, head cabbage, cauliflower, head lettuce, green peas, green beans, potatoes, and turnips.

Light gladioli, medium gladioli, dark gladioli, unnamed gladioli, mixed gladioli, pansies, sweet garden flowers.

Additional classes will be opened.

Old-Timers' Booth: Bill McParquhar is in charge of this interesting display which we know will attract attention unsurpassed by any of the other features. The history of Didsbury in pictures, old and new.

There will also be a farm equipment display and automotive display on the grounds. See the latest mechanical aids to work and pleasure.

Then of course when the dust settles on the ball diamond there will be a giant Bingo in the arena, featuring two 550 blackouts and other valuable prizes.

George Law has his slaves (the worse than Simon Legree) will be on hand to provide hot dogs, drinks and treats for the mob (at a price, of course).

It all sounds good to us. See you at the sports ground on Wednesday, August 10!

If Everyone . . .

If every one who drives a car Could lie a month in bed. With broken bones and stitched-up wounds, or fractures of the head. And there endure the agonies That many people do They'd never need preach safety Any more to me or you.

If every one could stand beside The bed of some close friend. And hear the doctor say "No hope" Before the fatal end. And see him there unconscious Never knowing what took place. The laws and rules of traffic I am sure we'd soon embrace.

If every one could meet The wife and children left behind And step into the darkened home Where once the sunlight shined. And look upon "the Vacant Chair". Where Daddy used to sit. I am sure each reckless driver Would be forced to think a bit.

If every one who takes the wheel Would say a little prayer, And keep in mind those in the car Depending on his care. And make a vow and pledge himself To never take a chance. The Great Crusade for Safety Would suddenly advance.

It has been my privilege and pleasure to serve the people of Didsbury and district for the past twenty-five years. I started business in a very small way in a lopsided store on Main Street (which was next to the Armories and is now removed) on August 1st, 1930 and moved to my present location in 1938.

I would like to take this opportunity to express my appreciation to my many friends and customers for their splendid support in the past. For your convenience, I endeavor to keep an up-to-date stock at all times and while it is limited, if I do not have what you require, am always willing to try and get it for you.

Many thanks friends and looking forward to serving you in the future.

WATCH THEM GROW

Is your boy beginning to take an active interest in farming? Most boys do as they grow up. Encourage him! Now would be a good time to help him start his own bank account.

Introduce him to your Royal Bank Manager and let him handle his own financial affairs. He'll be happier with his own projects to work out—his own bank account to build. And you'll enjoy watching them grow together.

Ask for a copy of our booklet "Financial Training for Your Son and Daughter". It provides a practical pattern of financial training for any parent with growing children, shows you how to encourage them to stand on their own feet in financial matters. It is free, at your nearest Royal Bank branch.

MOST POWERFUL DIESEL IN CANADA: D. S. Thomas, vice-president, Canadian Pacific Railway, and George A. Moulter, right, senior vice-president, Canadian Locomotive Company, examine a few words during their inspection of the most powerful diesel locomotive in Canada. Hauled over to the C.P.R. at Kingston recently, the 2,400 horsepower unit boasts a top speed of 75 m.p.h. and more pulling power than any other locomotive on C.P.R. lines. The power-packed unit—another Canadian Pacific first—is equally adept at hauling freight or passenger cars. The new "Trainmaster" will undergo tests on the Montreal-Saint John, N.B. line, and later on the Kettle Valley Division.

High School Robots Learn The "Three R's"

The following is an article borrowed from a recent issue of Popular Mechanics. We reprint it in the hope that it will be of interest to our readers:

AN ELECTRONIC THINKER—a completely mechanical robot built by Robert Kotsmith, 16, and Michael Shmielewski, 17, high-school juniors at Foley, Minn., is passing exams of a factual nature that would stump any uneducated robot.

The machine, built during a period of 10 months at an estimated cost of only $120, understands and answers the human voice. The Thinker answers mathematical questions, giving data on current events and history, writes and even learns new facts it does not already know. Even to persons well versed on scientific progress, this project seems astounding. Foley science instructor Alfred A. Lease says this of his students: "Their accomplishments would make some college graduate look on with envy."

When I walked into the chemistry laboratory of Foley High School, Lease and the two inventors were putting the Thinker through its trial performance. It had just written its first word: M-A-R-C-H. This was the month in which it was completed. As I walked in, the machine was writing L-E-A-S-E, clearly, in nearly square letters, slanted slightly left about an inch high.

"Ask it any question you like," suggested the students.

The machine has three units: The main compartment, about six feet long, three feet wide and four feet high, contains the "brain"; the second unit holds the counting and spelling mechanisms; and the third houses the writing apparatus.

On the central unit are five switches and five warning lights to indicate which switch is on. These switches control the areas in which questions can be asked. Cube-root and square-root answers, each controlled from a separate switch, are given on the numbered unit. There is a switch for longhand writing and one for answering current events. The fifth switch directs multiplication answers.

On the number-letter unit, one dial points to numbers 0 to 9, to a period and to Yes and No. Another dial points to letters A to W. The mathematical answers are given through this unit along with answers that are spelled out. In writing unit a pen, hovering over a stack of paper, is held and directed by two metal "seesaw" fingers.

I asked the machine for the square root of 98. (In asking questions through a microphone worn about the neck, each inquiry must be prefaced with "Now.")

"Now . . ." Lease ordered, "give me the square root of 98." As he said this he pronounced the words distinctly and counted on his fingers. Pronunciation must be clear and syllables counted since inquiries must be limited to ten syllables.

Slowly the number dial pointed out the answer. First to 9, then to the period. Next to 8, and then back to 9. That was the correct answer, 9.89. I asked for the square root of 177. Again the correct answer: 13.3. All these answers were "pumped" into the Thinker in a briefing session before I started my "interview."

I turned to current events. "Now . . ." president Harry Truman. Slowly it spelled out E-I-S-E-H-O-W-E-R-I. I asked for the governor of Minnesota. It paused a few seconds—about 10 seconds are needed between the answers—and wrote: those peculiar "drawn" letters P-R-E-E-M-I-A-N. Correct.

That's remarkable for current events. I thought, but how would it do on history? I led off with, "Now who won the world's series last year?" That was too easy. It quickly answered, G-I-A-N-T-S. I decided to go back a few years and asked the robot, "Now . . ." who was president after Monroe? The machine wrote in distinct letters, A-D-A-M-S.

Can the machine reason? A simple test showed that it will not. I asked, "Now . . ." will Red China attack Formosa? There was no answer.

The final question during this first 20-minute "run" surprised me. As a special treat for me the boys "briefed" it. "Now . . ." they asked proudly, "name the represented magazine." Placing one word over the other, it wrote: P-O-P-U-L-A-R M-A-G-A-Z-I-N-E-I-C-S.

They immediately noticed the error, and looked embarrassed. "Mechanics" was spelled wrong.

So the machine could make mistakes, I thought. But no, it was a mistake in briefing the Thinker, not the Thinker's error. The machine spells phonetically. After they told it to spell "mechanic" the spelling was correct.

Neither Lease nor the boys will tell exactly how the Thinker functions. The "magic brain" is still under wraps because of possibilities of patents. This much of an explanation is given:

First, the Thinker is a facsimile type of machine. It reproduces answers given to it, but it can't think for itself.

An audible word, signal or sentence is spoken into the mike and is carried to the central "nervous system" or "brain." Here the question is acted upon and answered by relaying electrical impulses over to a receiving apparatus which changes the impulses back into intelligible answers.

It does not involve anything basically original, Lease, who advised the boys, stressed that "we make absolutely no claims of discovering any new scientific phenomena."

It is unique because it applies old principles in a completely new and different way according to Lease. He explained it this way:

"A professor once told me that the only difference between an engineer and anyone else is that what takes others two hours to do, an engineer can do in one hour. About the same thing is the case here."

The machine parts—mostly scraps—are worth about $20. The boys estimated their actual labor at $60 hours each day. At a dollar an hour the total cost would run a little over $1000. It's powered by regular household current, and uses about 200 watts.

The Thinker is built largely around the molecular theory of magnetism, the electromagnetic theory and the theory of electromagnetic induction. In other words, it is as simple as the common bar magnet, the electric motor, the electric generator and the transformer. It deals with inductive and inductive reactance, as applied in pulsating direct-current and alternating-current circuits.

The inventors emphasize that it is a completely "closed circuit" device, using no form of radio-type transmitter or receiver. The machine was originally designed to be a communications device rather than a question-and-answer-type machine. Its biggest value would be as a communicator, the boys believe.

As a novelty—leaving the Thinker in the back room for moment—Castor the Great steals the show. He's handsome, romantic and "dangerous" robot who roams the halls of Foley High School. Directing Castor on his jaunts is his creator, Kenneth Freide, 17, a junior.

After working for two months assembling various pinball-machine parts and other pieces of "junk," Kenneth was able to make Castor walk, defend himself with a water gun, pick up paper, wink at girls, talk and react with fright by raising

WHY DEMOCRACY WORKS

"In dictatorship, it's all or nothing at all," says The Financial Post. "Mistakes in judgment are colossal and fatal as Hitler demonstrated in his military strategy and as Russia may now be demonstrating in agricultural policy. Critics of democracy can produce chilling lists of inefficiencies in our society; but it seems likely that a number of small mistakes are safer, economically and politically, than one big one."

"This may seem cold comfort, especially to the political idealist; but it may be the chief ingredient of survival, even in a hydrogen age."

his hair! Total value of this project—about $200.

There is also a little robot, Versal Cross, 17, the senior student who built it calls it a Doodlebug or Snail. The Snail follows a beam of light and, having lost it, searches until it finds the light again. It is not controlled by radio or by any other remote controls. Assembled, it looks like a giant bug with feelers guiding it as it searches for the beam of light.

Armies in the future might use cannons like the one Edward Heintz constructed as his science project. Loaded with water and a few drops of sulphuric acid, the cannon breaks the solution into gases. The gases are ignited by an electrical charge. With a loud "crack," the cork is sent sailing across the 40-foot classroom.

For more recreational project, seniors Thomas Wildman and Gordon Visie both 17, connected an "electronic brain" to an electric train. A spoken command causes the train to stop, go forward or back up. The brain changes the sound waves of the voice into electrical currents. These are sent to the controls of a regular electric-train set. One "shot" of electricity stops the train, two shots make it back up and three shots make it go forward. When a series of syllables is said—either one, two, or three—the same number of electrical shock enter the controls and move the train.

The train works just like an old Iron Horse, too. Using "whoo" for the one-syllable command, the train stops. "Get-up" will make it lunge forward. "Back boy" starts the train on a backward run. The more ordinary commands are "stop," "go forward" and "back up."

In every corner of this Foley classroom are student-built machines that perform a variety of tasks. Each student must work on one project a year.

Lease, who taught shop classes for two years before becoming science instructor last year, says, "I will feel lucky if my efforts help produce only a handful of scientists, for even this handful may be responsible in the end for keeping our country in the scientific lead."

Pipeline . . . Which Way?

The Calgary technical planning board last Wednesday approved plans to build an eight-inch, 60 mile pipeline from the fast growing Sundre-Westward Ho oil sector to Calgary. The proposal goes before the Alberta Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board at a hearing in the Calgary court house at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Principal backers of the proposed line are pioneer Alberta oil companies in the United Oils-group.

The plan is expected to be opposed by the Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Company Ltd., which is understood to have an alternative plan to pipe Sundre-Westward Ho oil to the north. Details of this plan will not be made known within the next few days.

The relatively new and rapidly developing Sundre-Westward Ho field is 60 miles northwest of Calgary. Cremona Pipe Line Co., organized chiefly by the United Home-Federated team, would bring crude oil to the Calgary refineries area.

The Calgary market presently is served by pipeline from Turner Valley and by tank car from numerous fields in southern and central Alberta. Turner Valley oil output has been declining for many years.

John Strymgeour, vice-president of United Oils Ltd., said today that the Calgary area north as far as Sundre is showing preliminary signs of becoming an important oil and gas producing region.

"The first step in marketing this oil should be a pipeline to Calgary," Mr. Strymgeour said. "Geographically, a short line to Calgary would start to provide this market again with a stable source of light crude. Calgary can once again become an important marketing and refining centre."

Principal operators at Sundre-Westward Ho have been United-Home-Federated, Hudson's Bay, Shell Oil Company, Canadian Superior Oils, the Calgary-Edmonton Corporation, Great Plains Development and Triad Oil Company.

Development of the area dates back only to 1934, when Canadian Superior drilled a well, Robertson No. 9-26, which found wet gas in the Mississippian formation.

Great Plains followed up with Elton No. 16-13, one of the largest gas discoveries in Alberta. Further north, Shell-West Olds No. A-16-15 made another wet gas find.

First indication of oil in the area came when Home-Federated, Canadian Superior and Shell drilled Bergen Unit No. 11-18. The well found a small quantity of gas and a 23-foot oil pay zone.

At Sundre, Hudson's Bay found commercial oil production 10 miles north of the Unit No. 11-18 discovery. Then a well drilled on pooled acreage found commercial oil at Westward Ho.

The next step for United-Home-Federated was initial steps for for-

Francis Adams spent the weekend at his home here. Brian King also visited at the Adams home on Friday afternoon.

Henry Davis of Three Hills visited in the district on Friday.

Our dry spell came to an abrupt end this weekend with rain and hail so hard it pocked the roads and was destructive to plant and berry life. Saturday evening a two-mile radius was practically hailed out. Trees were stripped of their leaves and gardens pounded into the ground. Little creeks rose to very large ones with amazing speed. We don't wish to see a storm like this again.

Wayne Stringer came home Saturday night from the Burnt Timber where he has been employed. The rocks cut at coal camp had slid over the road making it impassable for vehicles to cross, so between walking and hitching rides it was early Sunday morning before he finally reached his home.

Danny Howton spent Saturday night with Brian Moore while Judy Moore spent the night with Jeanne Howton.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. John Cooper and Keith Cooper were visitors with Mr. and Mrs. George Admussen on Sunday afternoon.

mation of Cremona Pipe Lines.

Another oil strike in the Sundre sector was confirmed recently by Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas.

The indicated new oil well is Hudson's Bay-Sundre No. 3-24, situated one mile south of previous producers in the area.

Two drillstem tests were run. The first, between 9,000 and 9,030 feet, recovered 560 feet of green light-gravity oil. The second, between 9,028 and 9,080 feet, recovered 3,870 feet of clean oil. Tests are continuing.

WESTCOTT NEWS

(From Our Own Correspondent)

The relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Dageforde and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Folkmann the former who is a brother and the latter who is a sister, bade farewell last Wednesday to their departing kin, Mr. and Mrs. August Dageforde and daughter, Lorraine of Belle, Calif., and also sister Mrs. Emma Schuerman of Downie, Calif., as they were all homeward bound after a week's visiting here.

Mr. Benny Folkmann son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Folkmann of Creston B.C. spent a week of his leave from Cdn. Army Signals at Kingston, Ont. here with Mr. and Mrs. Otto Folkmann.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Edwards and family, friends of by-stone years were also present at the wedding feast at Folkmanns. The following Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Herman Dageforde were hosts to the group at a family dinner.

A former pastor of the Lutheran Church, Rev. C. J. A. Ni sen who resided here for more than eight years, returned on Friday last after being away almost 25 years, with him was his wife and daughter Dorothy, her husband and the latter parents all from North Dakota. The Nissen resided out at the little country church and although none of the building remained they had to go back and visit the old grounds and their many old friends, the Dagefordes who were neighbors and Otto Folkmanns and many others in the vicinity, friends of by-gone years. They did stay in town at nights with the John Jacobson's and on Sunday a group of ladies arranged for pot-luck dinner after the church service giving Rev. Mrs. Nissen a chance to meet again the many others they had known before. Before the group departed on Sunday, Rev. Nissen made a nice farewell speech and as fitting climax to occasion everyone joined in the singing of the grand old hymn "God Be With You Till We Meet Again." With these fine best loved people go our best wishes for good health, and a safe return from their holiday in Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Papke and son Larry of Big Prairie were called at the Herbert Gostjen home on Sunday evening last.

Mrs. J. Bogner of Calgary is a guest at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Alf Baudistel and Mr. Baudistel.

Master Robt. Wihusen is helping with the hay at Jack Robertson's.

We understand a group of young people enjoyed a summer roast and camp-fire in the vicinity on Saturday night.

About 4,000 acres of crop in the Hillspring area of southwestern Alberta was almost completely destroyed by a severe hail storm on Monday, July 11. This was Alberta's first serious storm this year.

Mail Bag

The following letter is reprinted from the pages of the Innisfail Province.

"The man who picks up the paper published in his home town, glances through it, niffs, and says 'Nothing in it.' Is by no means a rare bird. He lives in every town. As a rule he reads all the papers regularly. Never misses an issue if he can help it. Some even prefer to borrow a copy and thus save five cents. That class is not above explaining just how he'd run the paper. Nine times out of ten he knows nothing whatever about getting out a newspaper. His curious, but true, that the general run of mankind cherish illusions that there is no line of business that as a matter of fact, it's one of the hardest. Some people cling to the idea that putting a 'piece' in the paper costs nothing, or next to nothing. They overlook the fact that every line that is published represents so much invested capital, so much labor, so much time, so much expense. Printing a paper nowadays cost real money. Machinery and maintenance, ink and paper cost, setting the type, running the press, making up the forms, doing the hundred and one odd jobs around an office. Cost. Getting out a paper, no matter how small, means everlasting vigilance, judgement, discretion, an acquaintance with everybody, mechanical skill, a thick skin, a level head, muscular legs, the patience of Job, the wisdom of Solomon, and the faculty of smiling when you don't feel that way."

Best regards,
"Horace"

Time for a QUICK PICKUP

You don't argue with a locomotive. So a manufacturer of rail equipment has developed a light-weight rail inspection car that carries four people yet can be taken off the track by one man.

Since men who design rail cars, aircraft and other transportation equipment regularly use aluminum to cut down dead weight and increase payload, it is no surprise that aluminum was used to replace heavier materials in many parts of this inspection car. The person who will be surprised is the locomotive engineer who first sees a rail inspector nonchalantly—and single-handedly—hosing his scooter from the side of the train.

CORN LEAF APHIDS: Following is more information on this insect which is presently creating a real problem in this locality:

Malathion, a new and powerful insecticide does an effective job of killing the largest part of the aphid population. It is necessary that the spray come in contact with the aphid to kill them. Hence the use of 10 gallons water per acre with fairly high pressure to penetrate the roll-up leaves. Adjust booms to travel about one foot above the average height of grain. Since Malathion is obtained in 50, 80 and 90 percent concentrations it may confuse you to know how much to use per acre:
Use these proportions:

Malathion 50% use $\frac{3}{4}$ to 1 pint per acre. 80% use $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ pint per acre. 90% use $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ pint per acre.
Add the above material which amounts to 10 ounces technical Mala-thion per acre to 10 gallons of water to treat each acre. Recent rains and cooler weather should serve to wash down some aphids and reduce population and also increase and stimulate barley development.

After heading is complete further damage should be insignificant.
Greenfeed oats may also be attacked.
Following are some outlets handling Malathion: National Grain Elevators, Green Cross at Calgary and Red Deer, Allied Chemicals at Calgary, Nastra Brand Spray at Calgary, Chipman Chemicals at Edmonton and Lethbridge. The best advice that I can offer is that you keep a close check on late maturing barley and oats and then make your own decision whether to spray or not to spray in the light of what I have told you.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The fact that spiritual understanding, health, and power will be attained at Christian Science services Sunday. Readings from the King James Version of the Bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy comprise the Lesson-Sermon, entitled "SPIRIT." Among the passages to be read from Science and Health is the following (99:23):

"The calm, strong currents of true spirituality, the manifestations of which are health, purity, and selfimmolation, must deepen human existence are seen to be a bald imperfection, until the beliefs of material position, and sin, disease, and death give everlasting place to the scientific demonstration of divine Spirit and to God's spiritual, perfect man."
The Golden Text is from Ephesians 6:9: "The fruit of the Spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth."

Freedom Being Frittered Away?

Seventy-seven per cent of United States wheat farmers have voted for further restrictions in the acreage to be sown to wheat in order to qualify for a support price of $1.81 a bushel for the 1956 crop.

The practice of allowing some farmers to decide by their votes what crops other farmers should be allowed to grow, is becoming quite common in the western world; and is one of the dark spots on horizon of present day agriculture.

If agriculture is to perform its function of feeding the world, and if the farmers are to perform their duty of producing the crops humanity need and at the same time maintain the fertility of their land, every farmer must be free to grow the crops the world wants and in the rotation that experience has shown his land requires.

This new practice of allowing groups of farmers or of government officials to determine what crops may be grown in a country is a complete departure from the principles that have governed those things in the past. As long as the farmers were free to decide for themselves what crops they would grow, they selected the crops they found most profitable, that is, the crops that humanity wanted grown and for which it would pay the best price, always providing that such crops were suited to the farmer's land.

The free market was the farmer's guide in these matters, for it revealed, as nothing else could, what crops the world most wanted and how badly it wanted them. It did this by offering the best prices for the crops it wanted most.

It has also resorted to the weird devices to get rid of its unsalable surplus wheat. In order to create a scarcity that would enable it to overcharge its own citizens and the countries which regularly trade with it, it is actually giving away wheat to countries that are not in the habit of buying it.

The experience we have had with this kind of planning has been enough to give us some idea of what to expect if we allow the planners to get complete control of things.

Our objections to the system are: 1. It takes the planning of the country's agricultural production out of the hands of the sensible people who are willing to be guided by the open market, and puts it into the hands of the few whose aim is to manipulate the market.

2. It attempts to create shortages with a view to influencing prices. 3. It deprives the public of the reliable information on the supply and demand situation which only the open markets can furnish. 4. It deprives the farmer of control of his business and could easily

The farmer had just shown the new hired man around the farm and explained to him all the jobs he would be expected to do.

"How about clearing the snow out of the driveway and from around the house?" asked the hired man.

"What do you mean?" asked the farmer, "there's no snow at this time of year."

"That's true," replied the new hired man, "but there should be plenty by the time I get the rest of these chores done."

GRAVE PROBLEM

A grave-digger absorbed in his thoughts, dug a grave so deep he could not get out. Came nightfall and his predicament became more and more uncomfortable.

He shouted for help and finally attracted the attention of a chap who was one under the weather. The embriated citizen looked in the grave and finally distinguished the shivering form of the grave-digger.

"No wonder you're cold," he said. "you haven't got any dirt on you!"

DISTRICT NEWS

M.V.B.C. NEWS

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Miss Dorothy Thompson, dean of women, Nazareth College, Red Deer, was a guest for several days of Rev. and Mrs. Taylor. She sang in the Sunday morning service in the U.M. Church.

Tuesday evening of last week was the occasion of a shower for Marion Eby in the College dining room. A number of friends met and presented her with some very nice gifts. Her wedding on Thursday afternoon was an occasion of happiness for all who attended. She and her husband, Jack Archer will reside near the latter's home east of town. Both these young people are graduates of the College.

Rev. and Mrs. D. C. Eby, Grace and Ruth, were guests of the College for several days during the last week. Rev. Eby is moving to the Mountain View Church this week. Miss Ruth is a student nurse at the Royal Alexandra Hospital, Edmonton and will graduate in the spring. Miss Grace is engaged as a teacher at Leduc for the coming year.

On Friday evening a large number of friends gathered in the College in honor of Miss Opal Swalm, bride-elect for this month. The shower was held under the auspices of the Youth Fellowship of the Didsbury church. Under the able leadership of Elvira Swalm, games were enjoyed during the course of the evening. Mrs. Donald Taylor was in charge of games also. When the gifts were presented, little Miss Sherrill Taylor, dressed as a bride, and Douglas Snyder as groom, presented the bride-elect with a lovely corsage of yellow roses. The gifts were then opened, and Miss Swalm responded by telling her friends of her plans and the preparation she and her husband will make for the mission field. She was the recipient of some very lovely and useful gifts.

On Sunday evening the Youth Fellowship of Bergen presented a splendid program in the church. After the program the young people of the church held a sing-song in the College dining room, after which these young visitors were given refreshments before returning to their homes.

Miss Esther Cressman and Miss Viola Snyder of Kitchener, Ontario were guests at the College for several days. They had come to attend the Archer-Eby wedding. They were guests of Miss Gladys Eby during part of this time. Miss Cressman is a trained nurse and has spent one term of her service in the Mission field of Nigeria, West Africa. She will return this fall to her chosen field of labor. She and Miss Snyder have gone to the Coast after which they will return again to visit Rev. and Mrs. D. C. Eby at Mountain View. Miss Cressman will speak in the church Friday evening, August 12, and show her pictures of the work there. You will want to attend this meeting.

Miss Gladys Eby is very busy in the College library. She has nearly all of the books catalogued and will re-arrange them on the shelves for the coming winter. Any person having books suitable for the library may feel free to send them, or bring them at any time. The College is always grateful for any such contributions.

We are glad to report that both Linda Hedegaard and Keith Taylor are well on the mend, and can run about quite well even though their feet are not quite healed. Foot trouble seems to have been the order of the day around the College recently.

Grace Eby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Eby and Glenn are in the Valley at present. Glenn has

Keep in step with traffic. The driver who's Out of Step is the one who causes trouble. Stay in your own lane, anticipate your movements in advance, give the proper signals and Keep In Step with Traffic.

When you're driving through a strange town, it pays to consult the map before you tackle the traffic on busy streets. If you know when there's a turn coming up you can prepare for it by moving into the proper lane.

LIBERTY MAGAZINE LAUDS WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS

Canada's 963 weekly newspapers with a combined circulation of 2,475,140, are the backbone of Canadian country life according to the current July issue of Liberty magazine.

Appearing under the title "Canada's Cracker-Barrel Oracles," this Liberty study by former Brampton Peet Gazette reporter, Robert Webb, finds that "editors of the weekly newspapers have, naturally, advanced from the front-line, postal-in-one-hand, pen-in-the-other crusader, whose hand-operated press turned out stinging editorials. But that editorial spirit of poking gentle fun at local celebrities, setting public support for community endeavors and whipping civil officials into action, hasn't yet been tossed in the 'hell-box'."

A survey made among weekly newspaper editors disclosed some interesting facts. According to Liberty, 85% have served as president of their local Chamber of Commerce or Board of Trade; 45% have been mayor or vice or held other high public office in their community; 91% work an average of 55 hours weekly; 23% reported personal incomes of over $5,000 annually; and many of them are university graduates.

The Camrose Canadian was singled out for special reference in this Liberty article, with special reference to the promotion effort given to the community feature "Operation Oil," in 1952.

Twenty-four out of every 100 Canadians have telephones.

A job in the harvest fields, and Grace is vacationing. She will return to attend the Gull Lake Camp soon.

Gull Lake Camp opens this Tuesday. A large number of young people from this community are attending. President Taylor is one of the main speakers at the Camp, and will be accompanying the young people on Tuesday as they go to Camp. Rev. Willard Swalm, youth director of the Church, is in charge of the camp again this year.

Notes From D.A.

By HOWARD J. FULCHER

Shelterbelts are a valuable asset to the farm, they provide protection to the stock and the buildings, they make working in the yards more enjoyable through the protection provided and the beauty supplied. Over a million trees will be available to Alberta farmers and their shelterbelts from the Alberta Tree Nurseries next spring. This has been an exceptionally good year for transplanting and the stand is in very fine condition.

The demand for shelterbelts in Alberta is on the increase. Nurseries have, over a long period of time, planned to accommodate this increase in popularity of farm shelterbelts. However, few people realize the time and effort involved in growing these trees to a size suitable for shipment. The evergreens which will be going out in the spring of 1956 were planted in 1952. The seed of spruce and pine are sown in seed frames where they remain for two years. At the end of the time when they are 3 or 4 inches high, they are transplanted in nursery rows where they remain for another 2 - 3 years. Deciduous trees such as caragana, ash, elm, and Manitoba maple take 1 - 2 years to reach a size suitable for shipment. Although the supply will be good, orders are expected to be heavy it is therefore advisable that farmers order their trees soon. Order forms are available at this office now, and trees ordered now will be here for 1956 plantings. All that is required is that the land where the trees are to be planted is followed this year to ensure that it is free of perennial weeds and a good moisture reserve is built up.

Miss Janice Jacobsen of Cranbrook, B. C. has been visiting with relatives here this past week. Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Baudistel and family of Calgary spent part of their holiday visiting with relatives in the district last week.

This district was again hit by a hail storm last Wednesday evening one year to the date in which everything was cleaned up as it went, this storm although not as severe as before, still hailed out a good many farmers one hundred percent and so for many tillers of the soil it's gone for another year and it's a grim set-up, two and three in some cases five years, no harvest. There is also some barley fields where the corn leaf aphid is at its destruction also, who says a farmer's life is dull?

Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Lawrence of Oakland Calif., arrived in Alberta over the weekend, the latter is a sister of Mrs. Herman Papke of Didsbury. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence are guests at the Stettler Jubilee celebration this week, the former is an old-timer of that area and had compiled a history of the early days at Stettler, Alberta.

Congratulations to the newlyweds the former Miss Buelah Klinek and her husband, who were married in Calgary on Saturday last.
